C) Non-original work, open-source/permission granted: This submission is not my work. It is designated as open-source or material with permission granted for use in not-for-profit contexts as long as the original author is cited. The open-source designation/permission can be found in the following location (bibliographic book citation or artist's name with web link, etc.)

D) Non-original work, license status unknown: This submission is not my work. This is where I found it/what I know about it. I understand that the Haggadah work group will do their best to determine if permission to use in not-for-profit conditions can be obtained, but I understand that if it cannot, this submission might not be able to be used. Here is what I know about the source of this submission:

Optional: In one sentence, what meaning/memory does this submission represent?
